

Eagle Press Release

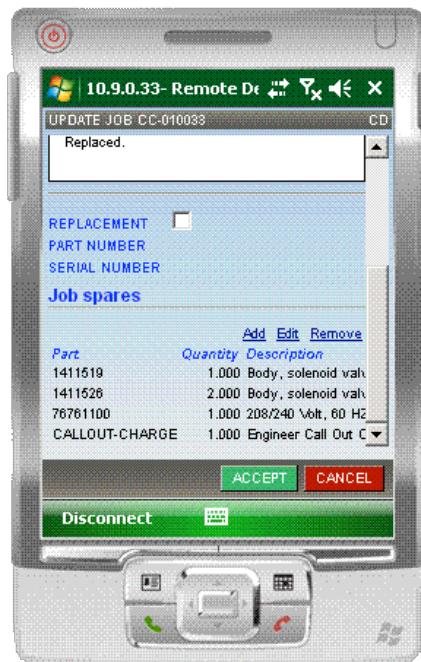

...Expertise in the Field

Find out how your business could fly with Eagle Field Service

Exel Computer Systems, a leading UK based author and developer of business management systems will be demonstrating the power and flexibility of its advanced field service management (FSM) solution at the Service Management Expo on 22nd-23rd September 2009. Drawing on its expertise of over 650 successful business management implementations around the world and its proven reputation for using state-of-the-art technology to enable businesses to achieve their maximum competitive potential, Eagle Field Service uses the latest innovative Internet technology to deliver unprecedented levels of control and visibility to field service businesses.

Visitors to the Exel stand 320 will be able to experience a true end-to-end mobile management solution that provides real-time information and resources to field based engineers, delivered direct to their mobile or touch screen device. From a company customer perspective, it means that they can be kept completely up to date with the most accurate information which in turn can only help maximise customer satisfaction levels. To celebrate Exel's first attendance at the Service Management Expo, visitors to the stand will be eligible for substantial discounts on Exel's software solutions.

Further information about Eagle Field Service can be found online at <http://www.eaglefieldservice.com> or directly from Exel Computer Systems.